

2004 Marathon Workshop, Copenhagen

A two week interdisciplinary and site specific workshop for university students facilitated by the Supertanker network. Supertanker worked on many dialogue and workshop formats to open up the discussion on the development of the Copenhagen harbour.

The Marathon workshop format was inspired by methodologies that came from design thinking combined with Situationist ideas of psychogeography. The work of the students became part of the general discussion of the development of the Copenhagen harbour that involved both local citizens, planners, politicians and developers.
