

2007 Path of Dreams, Hedehusene, Denmark

Supertanker was asked to work on a 5 year plan for urban regeneration in the neighbourhood of Charlottetvarteret, in Hedehusene, a suburb of Copenhagen. We worked closely with the primary school in the neighbourhood to map the area with the pupils. We used a range of mapping methods - photo safari, comics, and marking areas of interest.

An exhibition on the local school was followed by build it together action where one location - a hill next to the school - that the kids thought was both interesting and a bit scary. The main goal was to go from mapping and idea generation to action in a short timespan.

